DETAILED ACTION

Figure 5 and 15 as described as in the specification, see page 6, lines 24-26 and page 7, lines 20-22, which are shown top plane view of different embodiments, see a specification, page 2, [0025]-page 3, [0035].

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kumagai et al. (U. S. Patent 6,147,573), as in the record.

As to claim 20, Kumagai et al. discloses a circuit board as shown in figures 3B-3C comprising:

first and second conductive layers (20) including first and second interstices (29), wherein the first interstice (29) has a plurality of first widths laying in a first plane, see figure 3B, the width of the first interstice wound around and parallel with the surface of the conductor layer 20; the second interstice (29) engaged (interlock or connect together), see an attached paper of site Answers.com attaching with the Office action) with the first interstice by a dielectric layer (1) disposed between the first and second interstices (29) to form a capacitor (28), wherein the second interstice (29) has a second width laying in a second plan; the first and second planes are substantially parallel, and wherein the second width is substantially overlaps at least two of the plurality of the first width.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 07/24/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues:

(a) The first and second conductive layers having first and second interstices respectively, and (29) of Kumagai et al ('573) do not engage.

Examiner disagrees because in figure 1A of Kumagai shows elements (20) as conductive layers and also as disclosed in a site of Answers.com (see the attached paper attaching with the Office action) as define that the term "engage" means "interlock", and the "interlock" means "connect together."

Kumagai et al. does disclose the first and second interstices (29) as shown in figures 3B-C that connected together.

(b) Kumagai et al. does not disclose "the conductor 29 having the plurality of the first width."

Examiner disagrees because claim 20 recites "the second width (of the second interstice) substantially overlaps the plurality of widths (of the first interstice), so the question is confused. In addition, as shown in figures 3B-C, the reference does show because the first and second interstices wound around and parallel with the surfaces of the conductor layers 20 having widths, and the width of the second interstice that substantially overlaps at least two of the plurality of the widths of the first interstice.

Examiner believes the rejection is proper.
